ABSTRACT

The purpose of this study was to determine the relationship between Human Resource Management (HRM) practices and job satisfaction among civil servants in Putrajaya, Malaysia. Four independent variables namely compensation, performance appraisal, training and development and career advancement have been selected for this study. The employees from a front liner agency in Putrajaya been selected as a target population. The survey was conducted using questionnaire and distributed randomly to the respondents. A total of 300 questionnaires were distributed and only 200 sets were returned and useable.

Research findings revealed that there were a positive relationship between independent variables (HRM practices) and dependent variable (job satisfaction), however the regression analysis result indicate only three of the HRM practices namely compensation, performance appraisal and career advancement were significant with job satisfaction. Recommendations and implications for future research and practise have also discussed.

Keywords: HRM Practices, Job Satisfaction, Civil Servant
ABSTRAK

Hasil kajian menunjukkan terdapat hubungan yang positif antara pembolehubah bebas (amalan HRM) dan pembolehubah bersandar (kepuasan kerja), bagaimanapun hasil analisis regresi menunjukkan hanya tiga daripada amalan HRM iaitu gaji, penilaian prestasi dan kemajuan kerjaya mempunyai signifikasi dengan kepuasan kerja. Implikasi penyelidikan dan cadangan amalan masa depan juga turut dibincangkan.

Kata kunci: Amalan Pengurusan Sumber Manusia (HRM), Kepuasan Kerja, Kakitangan Awam
ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Praise to Allah SWT because finally I managed to complete a project paper for my studies in the field of Master of Human Resource Management with the title The Relationship between Human Resource Practices and Job Satisfaction: A Case Study Among Civil Servants in Putrajaya.

I would like to express my sincere gratitude and appreciation to Prof. Madya Dr. Chandrakantan s/o Subramaniam, who has been a great supervisor and adviser. His knowledge and guidance have greatly helped me in preparing and submitting this project paper.

My deepest gratitude goes to my beloved husband Mr. Fareed Firdaus bin Arund and my children, Nur A’delia and Ammar Raeef. Thank you for your love, support and understanding during my turbulent time in completing this program. The support from the whole family members are such invaluable that will never be forgotten.

Not forgetting to all UUM lecturers who were involved in my master degree’s program. Thank you for all the useful knowledge and information gathered from you has enhanced my knowledge. To all my friends whom I met them at UUM, you have done a lot for me. Thank you very much.

Finally, thank you to all individual who are directly or indirectly assisting and involved in this study because without their cooperation and support, I am unable to complete this project paper.

CHAPTER ONE

INTRODUCTION

1.1 BACKGROUND OF THE STUDY

Today’s work environment is undergoing a major shift; factors such as globalization, growing economies, and improved technology are constantly presenting new challenges and creating new opportunities for people. With these changes, people’s perceptions regarding their jobs are also changing.

As the world is becoming more complex, the importance of job satisfaction and releasing human potential at every level of the organization becomes more and more important. This was realized by the psychologist McGregor over four decades ago. The current value of the McGregor’s work has been described by Heil et al. (2000, p.3):

“…Those businesses that thrive today are not necessarily those with the most valuable resources, the greatest market share, or the most capital (though none of these hurt); rather, those businesses that are able to tap their human potential in the most productive manner are the ones who enjoy enduring success. This is the world that Douglas McGregor envisioned.”
