ACKNOWLEDGMENT

I would like to express my sincere gratitude to all the Universiti Utara Malaysia’a lecturers who were involved in my master degree’s program. All the useful knowledge and information from them have enhanced my knowledge in the subject matter of Human Resource Management.

Praise to Allah SWT because finally I managed to complete a thesis for my studies in the field of Master of Human Resource Management with the title The Relationship between Job Satisfaction and Intention to Leave among Security Personnel: A Case Study at Secom (Malaysia) Sdn. Bhd.

I am grateful for having been the student to a lecturer who is very sincere and dedicated when teaching and giving guidance. Doctor Fadzli Shah Abdul Aziz is not only acting as my supervisor but he is also accountable to encourage me to do research related to this topic.

Not forgetting the gratitude to the most important people in my life that is my parents and parent-in-laws, my beloved husband Mohamad Shukri bin Abdul Rahim who really understand my passion and my lovely son, Mohamad Raif Fahmi. The support from the whole family members are such invaluable that will never be forgotten.

To all my friends whom I met them at UUM, you have done a lot for me. A big thank you goes to Azliza binti Saad, you have been such a wonderful companion since we ever known. Finally, thank you to all respondents and the organizations involved in this study because without their cooperation and support from them, I am unable to complete this thesis.

CHAPTER ONE

INTRODUCTION

1.1 INTRODUCTION

Employee turnover is one of the concerns and persistent problem to most organizations today (Benjamin, Yeoh, Lim & Syuhaily, 2010); regardless type and size and at every level of the organization. It is a serious issue especially in the field of human resource management as it is very costly to an organization due to termination, advertising, selection and hiring (Abbasi & Hollman, 2008). According to Connolly and Connolly (1991), turnover is costly for the organization. It is also adding up total expenditure to the overall company’s profit and loss. It involves the separation cost such as the cost use in recruiting and selecting new employee, and the cost involved during the training period. Voluntarily turnover incurs significant cost, both in terms of direct cost (replacement, recruitment and selection, temporary staff, management time, or in terms of indirect costs like morale, pressure on remaining staff, cost of learning, product/service, organizational memory (Dess & Shaw, 2001). Therefore, the organization should reduce the turnover rate in the organization in order to remain competitive.

When an employee leaves an organization, the ability and motivation of the remaining employees to complete their duties might be affected today (Benjamin, Yeoh, Lim & Syuhaily, 2010). These direct and indirect impacts towards organization may jeopardize business entity in a long run. Increasing financial
