ABSTRACT

Celebrity is frequently used in advertisement to build awareness towards the product and brand. It is referring to the percentage of people who are familiar with a particular product or brand being advertised. Traditionally awareness is built incrementally and a lot of money and time is spent. On the other hand, the time taken to build awareness is shorter if a celebrity is use in the advertisement. Celebrity is also being used to position a brand in order to make the brand more believable. However this study postulates that there is no difference using celebrity and non-celebrity toward consumer’s attitude on advertisement especially for the consumer goods. Thus the objective of this study is to investigate: (i) whether celebrity and non-celebrity have similar endorser impact on consumers’ attitude on advertisement and (ii) the effect of celebrity and non-celebrity endorser characteristics (attractiveness, trustworthiness, expertise and product - brand congruency) on consumers’ attitude on advertisement. The development of the questionnaire is based on the literature review. Using similar questionnaire but two different advertisement, celebrity and non-celebrity as the model, were distributed. Out of 400 questionnaires, 333 questionnaires were returned but only 325 questionnaires were usable. The descriptive, correlation and regression analysis were conducted. The results show that the relationship between the independent and dependent variables is positive. However the score for the advertisement using the celebrity as the model have a higher score compared to non-celebrity. Thus this study could be concluded that there is a difference in using celebrity toward consumers’ attitude on advertisement for consumer goods.

All praises and gratitude to Allah s.w.t for all the help and blessings He bestowed upon me. I would like to express my humble appreciations and gratefulness to all the people who have made this journey possible. Allow me to start with my supervisor, Puan Nor Pujawati binti Md Said who has provided the unlimited amount of encouragements and professional support along the way in finishing up this thesis. She has always tried to supervise and guide me as best as she could and has always been there to support me. Next appreciation would go to the lecturers and comrades that have been literally supportive in discussing and giving out ideas to improvise my dissertation. To the UUM KL management team, I couldn’t thank all of you more for all the cooperation and prompt response on any matter or process pertaining the dissertation submission and evaluation. Last but not least, I would like to thank my friends and my family: my parents and to my brothers and sister for supporting me spiritually throughout writing this thesis and my life in general. Without all of you, this dissertation would not have been possible.

CHAPTER ONE

INTRODUCTION

1.1 BACKGROUND OF THE STUDY

Businesses use advertising using various media platform as a medium to reach their target market. Both traditional media platform such as printed media, broadcast to the latest media platform such as online or internet is used. An effective advertisement would assist in fulfilling the business goal.

Advertisement is use to remind existing product, to persuade repeat buying or usage of product and especially in introducing a new product to the market so that the large market is aware of the product. The advertisement is often focusing on the product that could contribute another solution on a common problem. Businesses also frequently use advertisement to show the extra benefits of the particular products over competitors’ products.

Advertising influences prospective customers to try advertised products and services. It also influences primary demand such as creating demand for an entire product category. It also keeps a company’s brand fresh in the consumer’s memory. Advertising is also used to communicate product breakthrough in a dramatic way especially for the first alternative form of existing product. Examples of this are the first introduction of: (i) liquid soap over the traditional bar soap and (ii) hybrid car over conventional car.
