ABSTRACT

Brand loyalty has become a major issue for the majority of the automobile brands in Malaysia’s automotive industry. To incorporate the business strategy, it is most vital to identify the factors that influence brand loyalty among car users, using the brand equity model. The main purpose of this study was to investigate the relationship between service quality and brand loyalty, the relationship between marketing-mix strategy and brand loyalty, the relationship between country-of-origin and brand loyalty, and finally, the mediating effect of trust on the relationship between service quality, marketing-mix strategy, and country-of-origin, with brand loyalty. This study consisted of three independent variables: service quality, marketing-mix strategy, and country-of-origin; a mediator: brand trust; and a dependent variable: brand loyalty. A total of 10 hypotheses were developed. Regression was used to analyze the mediating effect. The population consisted of Malaysian consumers, and a postal mail survey using judgmental, cluster and simple random sampling yielded 413 respondents in the Klang Valley, Selangor. The results showed 6 hypotheses being supported. The results indicated that marketing-mix strategy and country-of-origin have a significant relationship with brand loyalty; however, service quality does not have a significant relationship with brand loyalty. It was also found that service quality and country-of-origin have a significant relationships with brand trust. Contrarily, marketing-mix strategy does not have a significant relationship with brand trust. Mediating effects were significant where brand trust was found to be partially mediated between the relationship of country-of-origin and brand loyalty. The findings of this study while contributing to the body of knowledge, may also assist policy-makers and marketers in their sustainability effort.

Keywords: brand loyalty, service quality, marketing-mix strategy, country-of-origin, brand trust.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Firstly, I would like to thank my parent for bringing me into this world which filled with challenges and obstacles.

This work is the result of the utmost sincere and persistent guidance from my supervisor, Professor Madya Dr. Filzah Md Isa, whose questions and comments have significantly presented valuable insights to this dissertation. Her patience and motivation are highly commendable and appreciated and I thank her for being an excellent supervisor. Also a special thank you to Dr. Shamshuritawati Binti Sharif for the extra guidance given in this dissertation.

My sincere friends who stood by me through all these years to share their thoughts and strength for me to move on when I was about losing it. No words could express my gratitude to all of you.

My beloved family, especially my wife and daughters – Yuk Fong, Cindy and Tricia, thank you for everything and the sacrifices that have gone through. I would not have done it without your understanding, support and patience. Thank you for being very supportive in my quest for knowledge and excellence.

Finally, none of this would be possible without the blessings bestowed upon me by God. He has surrounded me with wonderful people and given me the gifts necessary to attain this huge accomplishment.

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION

1.0 Introduction

This study investigates on Malaysia car owners, brand loyalty in the Malaysian automotive market. This study, probes on car owner brand loyalty that they experienced in, and elements which motivate them to remain with a particular car brand. This chapter gives reviews on the background of this study followed by the statement of problems, research questions, objective, significance, scope of aforementioned research. It further highlighted on how the structure of this research is being arranged including definitions of all variables researched.

1.1 Background of the Study

Being earmarked as part of the important and strategic industries in the manufacturing sector, Malaysian automobile industry, carefully thought as the dynamic expanding industries as compared with other industries. For Malaysia in 2020 to be an industrialized country, the Malaysian Government has earmarked the automotive industry to boost the industrialization process.

In the automotive industry, brand loyalty is crucial to a car company because increased loyalty contributed cost savings through reduced marketing costs, reduced customer turnover expenses, increased in word of mouth and cross selling will lead to a larger share of customers, whereas loyalty towards a car brand will provides to a certain extent the guarantee of the brand quality.
