ABSTRACT

Brand attitude is one of the importance parts in order to survival of the company. In particular, this study intends to study on the association and influence or brand attitude among consumers. Thus this study investigates the association of the independent variables namely: (i) advertisement attributes, (ii) endorser characteristics and, (iii) product match-up on the brand attitude. The population of this study is the population in the Federal Territory of Putrajaya. Based on the data provided by the Statistic Department Malaysia (2015), there are 88,300 people residing in Putrajaya. The data for this study were collected through handing out the questionnaire designated target respondents. A questionnaire was adapted from the literature and was pilot tested before it was distributed to the consumers. A total of 200 questionnaires were distributed and 158 were collected. After the data cleaning process, only 153 questionnaires were usable. The findings indicate that the model is supported. There is a positive moderate relationship between physical attractiveness, trustworthiness and expertise over brand attitude. Advertisement attributes and product match-up show that the association between the variables is positive and strong.

Keywords: brand attitude, endorser characteristics
ABSTRAK

Katakunci: sikap terhadap jenama, ciri endorser.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

First of all, Alhamdulillah and grateful to Allah S.W.T for permission, guidance and grace to finished this dissertation as planned and fulfil this master programme requirement.

Secondly, I want to special thank and dedicated appreciation to my supervisor Madam Nor Pujawati binti Md Said for her supervision, assistance and high commitment in giving me the guideline and advice extremely valuable in preparing this paper. Also thanks also to UUMKL and OYAGSB for their support and help in any issue arising in order to complete this dissertation.

My special thanks also go to my family members especially to my lovely wife, Siti Nazihah binti Haji Moh Jamili. Thank you for all your time and support and also to both of my daughters Sofia Humaira binti Ahmad Faizal and Syakira Hana binti Ahmad Faizal. Not to forget my parents, Iberahim bin Jusoh and Mek Nab binti Hamat for their very supportive encouragement and prayers`. Without the encouragement and support from these special persons, this master degree will not be completed on time.

Finally, my thank you goes to all colleagues whose involve in discussion and sparking the ideas in my progress of completing this dissertation. May Allah S.W.T bless these efforts.

Thank you so much all.

CHAPTER ONE

INTRODUCTION

1.1 BACKGROUND OF THE STUDY

Markets are made of people and other organizations. People and organizations consume various products and services that are available in the market. There are also numerous companies producing similar products to the market and thus creates competition among the companies. Among ways to differentiate one product to another, branding is used by companies. Companies also try to attract and influence people to consume their products. Advertisement is heavily used in the consumer markets to attract and influence people to a particular product or brand.

Consumers are constantly targeted with product information by marketing companies. Today consumers are faced with numerous advertisements with vast information on products. Thus consumers use the heuristics approach to help them in making their purchasing decisions. This approach is basically using mental shortcuts to streamline the selection process cognitively. This is to avoid being puzzled or paralyzed by the number huge number of products offered in the market by numerous companies. Companies uses brand to stand out against all other competitors in the same product category using the advertisement platform.
