Abstrak

Kurang perhatian diberikan terhadap kebimbangan yang disuarakan berhubung peningkatan kadar ulang lakuhan jenayah (residivisme) di penjara di Nigeria. Penting untuk difikirkan cara terbaik untuk melaksanakan program pemulihan pembetulan serta orientasi pemulihan yang lebih baik untuk penempatan semula bekas banduan dalam masyarakat. Kajian berbentuk kaedah campuran ini berhasrat untuk meneroka program pemulihan pembetulan di penjara Oke Kura, Nigeria. Temu bual secara mendalam telah dikendalikan dengan sepuluh orang informan yang terdiri daripada kakitangan penjara Oke Kura di negeri Kwara, Nigeria. Sejumlah 242 orang banduan mengambil bahagian dalam tinjauan soal selidik yang dilakukan. Kutipan data melibatkan kaedah persampelan bertujuan yang berbantukan soal selidik. Data temu bual dianalisis secara bertema dengan menggunakan struktur data berkod. Dapatkan kuantitatif pula dianalisis secara deskriptif dengan menggunakan Model Persamaan Kuasa Dua Terkecil Separa untuk menentukan faktor yang menyebabkan berlakunya residivisme. Hasil dapatkan kuantitatif memperlihatkan bahawa terdapat hubungan yang signifikan antara program pemulihan pembetulan dengan kadar residivisme banduan. Selain itu, dapatkan kualitatif menunjukkan bahawa terhadap isu yang mempengaruhi keberkesanannya program pemulihan pembetulan seperti persepsi kakitangan penjara dan banduan dalam penglibatan mereka dengan program pemulihan. Kajian ini menyumbang secara signifikan kepada pendekatan baharu dengan menyediakan perspektif yang menyeluruh tentang cara pemulihan mempengaruhi residivisme secara langsung dan tidak langsung. Kajian turut mengetengahkan langkah penyelesaian yang boleh dilaksanakan. Kajian merumuskan bahawa faktor struktur seperti kitaran pemulihan, program reka bentuk, jenis program, dan cara pelaksanaan merupakan penyebab kepada masalah residivisme yang tidak dapat dibendung dalam kalangan banduan. Oleh hal yang demikian, kajian ini mengemukakan model yang boleh memandu usaha untuk memahami pemulihan dan merangka strategi penyelesaian bagi memastikan pemulihan yang berkesan.

Abstract

The apprehension for high rates of recidivism within Nigerian prisons received inadequate attention. It is pertinent to consider how best to practice correctional rehabilitation programmes. It is imperative to have a better orientation of rehabilitation for re-integration of inmate into the society. Therefore, the purpose of this study is to explore the correctional rehabilitation programme to reduced inmates recidivism in Oke Kura Prison. The study used a mixed-method design. The study explored the correctional rehabilitation programme. The in-depth interview conducted with ten Informants, who are staffs from Oke-Kura prison, Kwara State, Nigeria were dominantly used meanwhile 242 inmates participated in the survey, purposive sampling procedure with the aid of questionnaires for data collection. The interview data was analyzed thematically with the coded data structure, while the quantitative findings was descriptively done by using analysis and results of Partial Least Square Structural Equation Modeling in determining the forces which shape the cause of recidivism. The results of the quantitative showed that there is a significant relationship between correctional rehabilitation programmes with the rate of inmate's recidivism. In addition, the qualitative study found that there are issues affecting the effectiveness of correctional rehabilitation programme such as perception of prison staffs and inmates in participation in rehabilitation programmes are the main protagonists in the correctional rehabilitation programmes. The study has significantly contributed a new angles to the overall perspectives of how rehabilitation have been directly and indirectly influencing the recidivism. In addition the possible solutions have been proposed. The study concludes that structural factors (Rehabilitation cycles, Designing Programmes, Types of programmes and How to be accomplished) are the reasons for the intractable recidivism among inmates. For effective rehabilitation therefore, the study proposed a model to guide the rehabilitation pathways understanding and solution strategies.

Thus the PhD journey is made imaginable through the grace and mercies of the Abba Father, The One that was and The One that is and The One that is to come, Almighty God as well as the support and encouragement of many people. I am undeniably grateful to all of you and acknowledge with my genuine thanks.

A multi thanks to my team of supervisors: Prof. Madya Dr. Jamaludin Bin Mustaffa and Dr. Norruzeyati Binti Che Mohd Nasir. Prof. Madya Dr. Jamaludin Bin Mustaffa I humbly recognize with sincere appreciation for your scholarly support, guidance and guardian throughout the course of this study. I am constantly amazed at your ability and willingness to share your time with me. I am grateful for the privilege to tap from the fountains of your knowledge. I recall instances among several where you sacrificed your family time and gift for my family when I was going to Nigeria for data collection. Your love, care and affection are unequalled in the course of my study. I say thank you sir.

Dr. Norruzeyati Binti Che Mohd Nasir is an erudite scholar and mother in a many ways. Your valuable suggestions and constructive criticism in the course of this study are hereby acknowledged from the bottom of my heart with thanks and praises to you ma. I am fortunate and privileged to be your supervisee. You are highly recognized as an incalculable jewel. Thank you Dr.

My sincere appreciation goes to Prof. Dr. Arsaythamby a/l Veloo for your role as the Chairman of the PhD Thesis Oral Examination (Viva Voce), Prof. Dr. Azlinda Azman (USM) for your role as the External Examiner, your valuable suggestions and constructive criticism in the course of this viva is extremely appreciated prof. Dr. Fatimah Zailly Ahmad Ramli for your role as a Reviewer and Internal Examiner at my PhD Viva Voce, Your valuable suggestions and constructive criticism in the course of this viva and subsequent corrections are hereby acknowledged from the bottom of my heart with thanks and praises to you ma. I am fortunate and privileged to be examined you. Dr. Zarina Mat Saad (Chairman), Prof. Madya Dr. Wan Ibrahim Wan Ahmad (panel) and Dr. Siti Rozaina Kamsani (panel) for your role as Reviewer at my PhD Proposal Defense. Your insightful scholarly suggestions/comments and interests contribute immensely to the PhD Thesis – Correctional rehabilitation programme on recidivism among inmates in Oke Kura prison Kwara state, Nigeria. May the Almighty God guide, bless and guard you all. I appreciate you all greatly.

I am greatly indebted to my wife and Children, my wife Mrs. Mercy Muyiwa Aliyu and children; Master Emmanuel Ayomikun Aliyu and Oreoluwa Eyiinoluwa Aliyu these wonderful people granted me hundred (100) percent doctoral scholarship, thus making the actualization of my PhD programme possible. Thanking them also for their moral support, perseverance and prayers all through the period of this study.

I gratefully acknowledge the administrative support of the Nigerian prison services HQ Abuja, Nigerian police force HQ Abuja, and Nigerian prison services state command Kwara state. I recognize with thanks the support of CP Adekunle Oladunjoye (Commissioner of Police Research and Development section), SP. Lydia Remilekun Yusuf (Superintendents of Police NPF HQ, Abuja), ASP Garba Isiaka (Welfare department NPS State office), ASP Suleman Folorunsho (Welfare Officer Ilorin Prison) APC Kalu U. E (Statistics Department HQ Abuja), ASP Princess I. (Protocol), SP Olubukola Adekunle (SARS, Abuja), Wumi T (Protocol), and many more that I cannot mention here. Acknowledgement also goes to all who helped me during the data collection phase and to the respondents in this research.

I wholeheartedly appreciate your support in the course of my academic pursuits: Prof. Dr. B.A. Adepoju (BUK), Prof. Dr. M.B Shitu (BUK), Revd. Prof. J. A. Falola and Mama (BUK), Associate Prof. O. M. Popoola (UUM), Dr. B. Zakari (BUK), Dr. I. Aujara (BUK), Dr. S. Ghali (BUK).

I also wish to express my profound gratitude to the wonderful and dedicated research assistants Ogunleye Funmilola Feranmi, Moses B.O., Dr. Ismail B., Saheed L., Dr. Isaac T.T., and my sweet lovely sister Dr. Oluwaseun Adeyeye, and last but not the least sweet lovely sister Dr. Oluwatoyese Pelumi Oyetade.

Most importantly, my sincere appreciation goes to my family and friends, Alhaji Salawudeen Aliyu & Mrs. Victoria Omotayo Aliyu (Daddy and Mummy) Supr. Evan. Ojo and the family, Tajudeen Funsho Aliyu and the family, Kolawole Abdulfatai Aliyu and the family, Alfa AbdulRasaq and the family, Dare Wasiu Aliyu and the family, Officer Lekan Mutiu Aliyu and the family, Abiodun Muritala Aliyu and the family.

The RCCG Rehoboth Parish Family Lugbe Abuja, Nigeria, Pastor Obiora E. and the family, daddy Ezekiel and the family, Pastor Horsfall and the family, Bro. Rotimi T. and family, all my fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters in the Lord, please remain rapture able and The RCCG Power Pentagon Parish Family, Changloon Kedah, Malaysia, Pastor Peace Odeta, Pastor Philip Jehu, Bro. Adekunle Modile and the family and all my brothers and sisters in the Lord, please remain rapture able.

All of you have been a pillar of force for me to get through this journey. Grateful, grateful and grateful to you all. I love you all. Furthermore, my appreciation goes to all other people too numerous to mention who contributed either directly or indirectly to the successful completion of this research.

Finally, once again countless gratitude be to God Almighty, the most sovereign, most powerful, most merciful with whose mercy all good things are being accomplished.

CHAPTER ONE

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background to the study

Education provides public protection and rehabilitation of inmate that is the all-inclusive range of correctional education services. The provision of this service for inmates has been supported with several virtuous reasons. The significance of systematic arrangement of correctional rehabilitation programme has long been understood by criminologists and which has taken on a new prominence. Correctional rehabilitation programme is “one of the most dynamic and significant return services of the inmate to the society” (Gaes, 2008).

Correction programme is believed by many experts to be the most challenging and frustrating component of criminal justice (Hall & Killacky, 2008). There are the challenges of managing the inmates daily as well as the frustrations of inevitable mismanagement at attempting to accomplish multiple goals. New challenges present themselves every day. In a very real sense, employees in a correctional education programme are doing time the same as the inmates are doing time. It's easy to conduct a trial and sentence somebody; what's difficult is what to do with them after they're sentenced. Everything in corrections programme is done on a large scale because there is never-ending flow of inmates. Hall & Killacky, (2008) stated that, the managing thought behind prison correctional education is that once prison detainees learn particular abilities they are most likely going to partake in accommodating money related activities. With respect to detainees, preparing is seen as more than the typical appreciation of socialization or instructing and learning. The criticalness of direction in the prison setting is considerably broader than this ordinary thought. It can
